STRENUOUS LIFE

Miss Smith:

I would like to thank you for the greatest class of my life. The sophomore class is truly recreation but still I doubt. I have a kind of a half-full feeling that I can be doing more and learning more. This feeling makes me restless just like the one you would probably have after a great sailing or skiing movie But what ever it is it is there and I will have to apperciate it. Roosevalt has meant a lot to me. I + he accepted me with open arms and I have accepted it but there is still a void, a void which I could probably fill yet not in the immediate future. This sounds rather disjointed but not all thoughts are lucid on a very sentimental day. Thanks for everything!

When I first entered this class, it was just a course to be completed with the highest possible grade. But as the year progressed I learned so much and enjoyed learning about my fellows. I appreciate all the things you made me do (mainly reading, writing & thinking) because I know so much more. The approach to this year was different it made me think & think & think. I know this is a year that I've forgotten and thank you so much for making us do.

So a very wonderful person, whom I never will forget. Good luck in the future with your classes, and thank you for just "being here."

Class of 08'

I realize that I've been somewhat of a Nemesis to you, but I've enjoyed the class and the year. I may have a chance to come and see you next year; I hope so. Have an enjoyable summer, after our class you deserve it. Maybe I'll have you for my sr. year, maybe! I bet I'll see you.

4+1 to A-C H-C

I can sincerely say that this year was really exceptional. you have been a real inspiration to me, and have helped me to find myself this year. your constant smile really puts me in a good mood. Thank you so much.

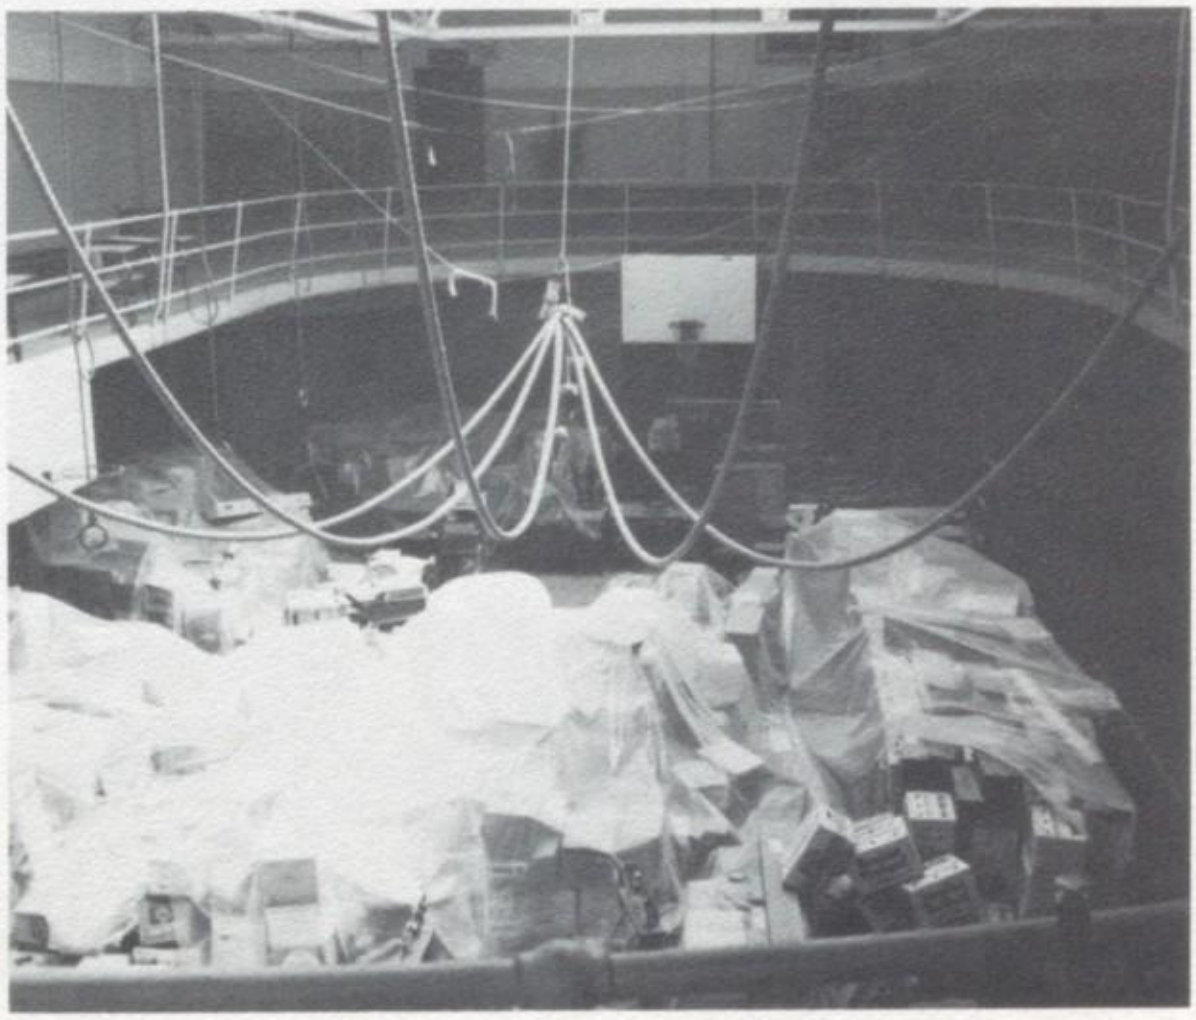
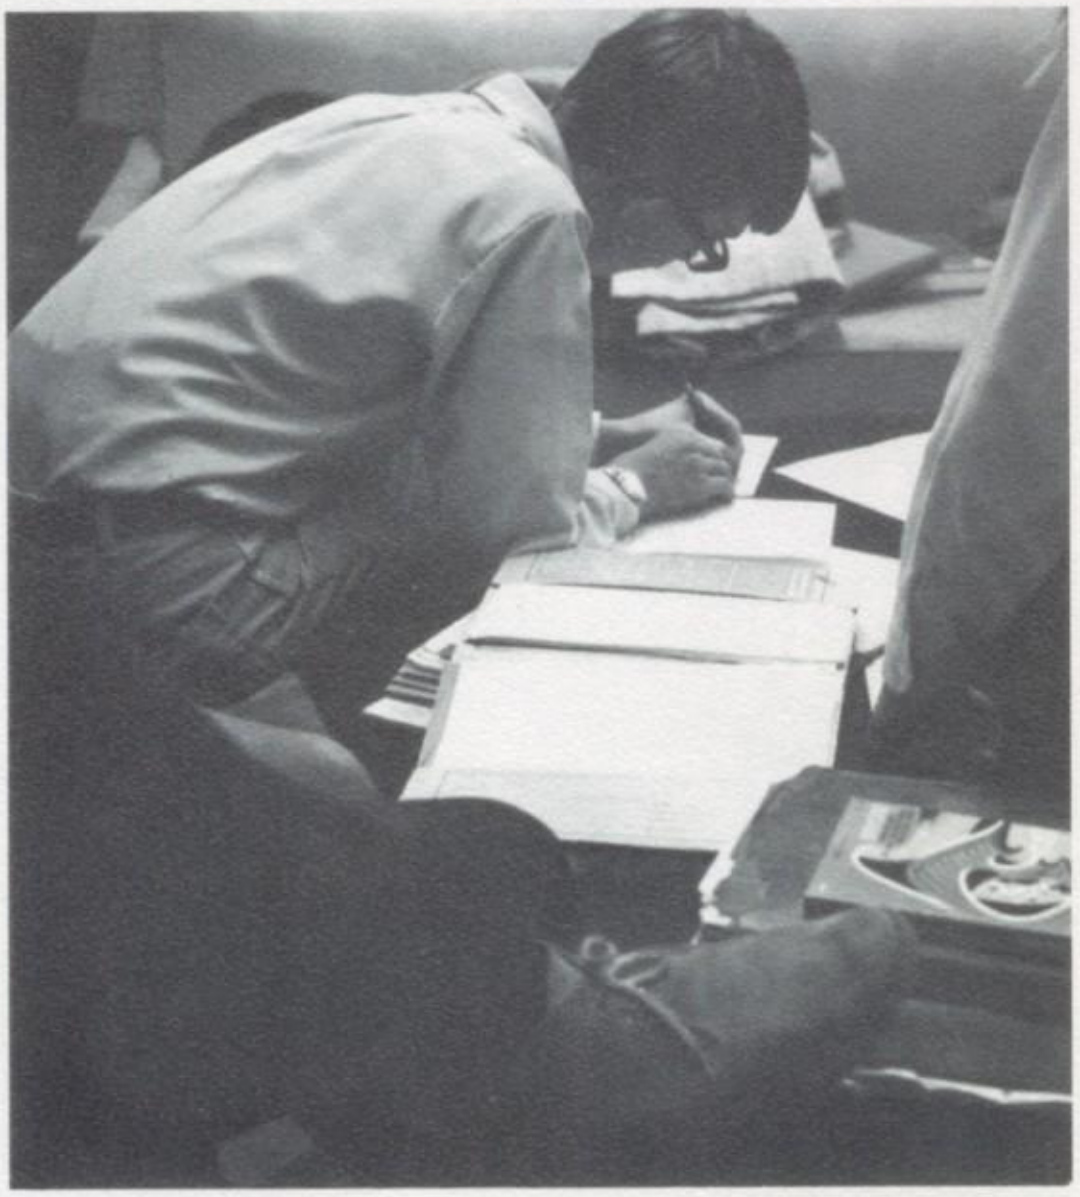
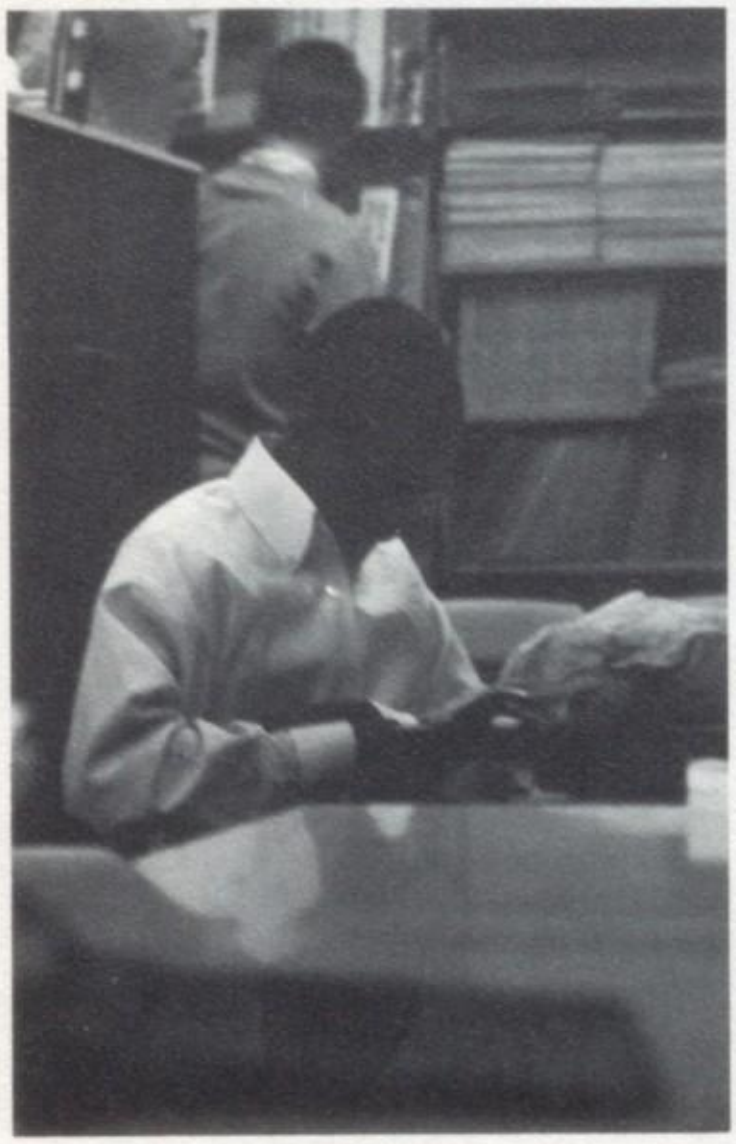
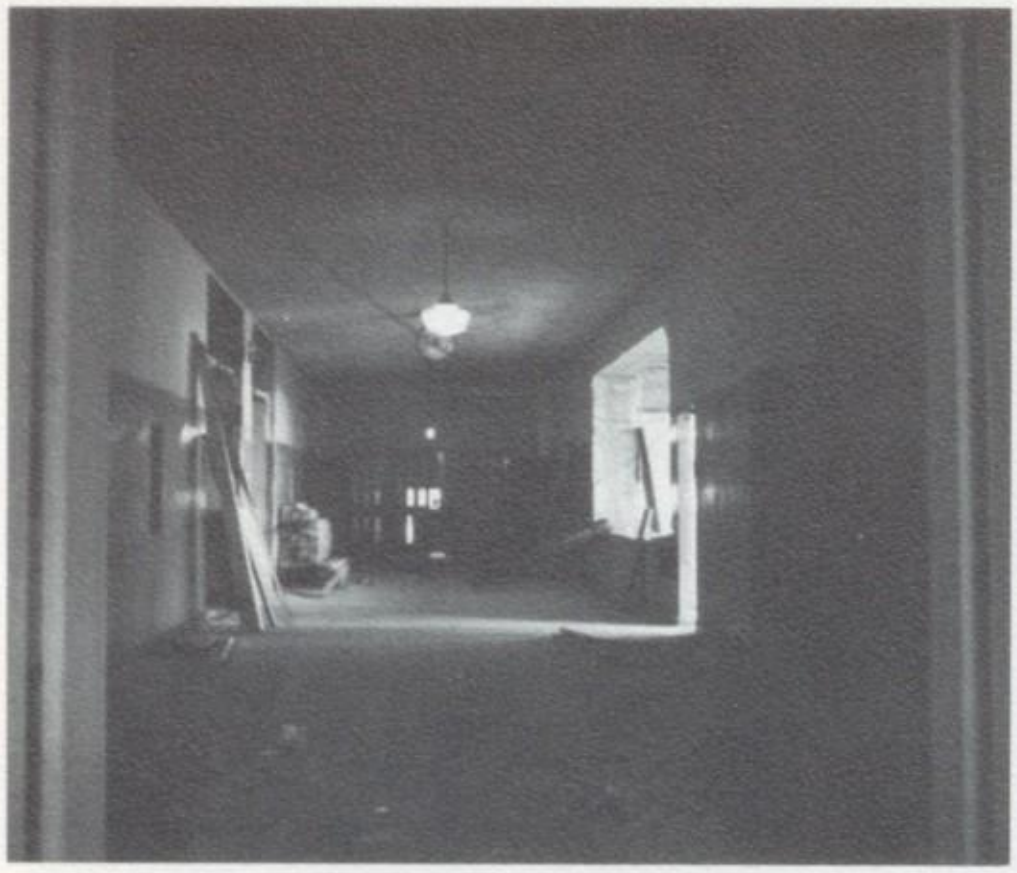
He finds himself in a conflict between the security of the old and the challenge and uncertainty of the new. With no warning a change comes over Roosevelt. There no longer appears to be the feeling of wholeness or familiarity of surrounding walls.



The year becomes one of forgotten traditions and seemingly cold, empty, and new situations. Each student needs a sense of purpose and integrity to face the adjustments that exist. He must take the impetus to meet and change the new environment.







The usual organization shifts and is superficially replaced with confusion and disunity.

Each student is faced with confinements and the responsibility of rebuilding a new feeling of familiarity. It means mistakes, concern, and laughter for each before the adjustment is made.

1967-68 will be remembered by Roosevelt students and faculty as the year that the benefits of construction began to be utilized. The new physical environment provided by the changed building displaced many of the ties and much of the security of the old building for the upperclassmen, but opened the door to new possibilities and adaptations. Confrontations with non-functioning restrooms, stairways designated "For Emergency Use Only," and masses of students clustered between classes around the alcove gave way to more efficient operation as early confusion cleared. Progress was marked by vending machines in the alcove, round and square tables in the new lunchroom, blue, red, and green plastic desks, rugs on the floor, and expanded facilities for the classrooms. But the change also extended to new attitudes and programs beyond those due to construction. A revised ASR constitution, rejuvenated Boys' Club, and the formation of GIRC and the Ruffettes offset the loss of programs such as Revue and the decline in student independence through Operation Tighten Up. A magazine drive and the new method of assembly production by a special class reflected innovation. Periodic voluntary cleaning of the seal by students reflected continued ties with old traditions as the year brought its possibility of "Something Better Beginning."

Inter-high—Pat Shaw, Terry Williams, Tim Dearborn, Remy Newland, Terry Timberlake.

Ad Council revised its program by placing more emphasis on counseling students with curriculum and discipline problems.

By working on the All-Metro League Sportsmanship Trophy, attending a safety conference at Sand Point Naval Air Station, and promoting the levy and transfer program with the Inter-Sights radio broadcast, Inter-high provided a student council between fourteen Metro League high schools.

With the theme, "Something Better Beginning," ASR included the areas of Student Cabinet and ASR Committees.

Meeting third period during Student Government, Student Cabinet tried to fit the changed atmosphere of the construction into the pattern of school life. With the Franklin exchange, the PTA ski sale and the support of transfer students, ASR Committees had an active year. Working with students and linking high schools, Ad Council, Inter-high, and ASR were an integral part of RHS.

Amid cut telephone wires, limited space, and makeshift headquarters such as the girls' gym, RHS student helpers waited patiently and found themselves justly rewarded with a partially new and remodeled school. In the main and counseling offices, girls aided the faculty by filing and by doing other general office work. Under the direction of various secretaries, Mrs. McGaw and Mrs. Mitchell, girls in the attendance office dealt with problems of absentees. The complete re-registration of seniors at mid-term kept IBM office workers busy preparing material for the IBM machines. Bookroom, treasury, and audio-visual groups supplied books to teachers, handled the selling of passes, and took orders for AV equipment.

Services lend order to the chaos.

One of the major results of Roosevelt's remodeling program was the new library, which included many modern facilities. Ticket sales were relocated on the second floor in the stockroom. The Social Service Committee conducted various drives as well as giving a Christmas party for the Orthopedic Hospital. For the first time, Finance Committee allowed sports to divide its own budget instead of designating a certain amount to each area. The Stage Crew's banging while building sets contrasted greatly with the quiet of study hall on the other side of the stage curtain.

Supervisors insure efficient study.

The remodeling of last year's study halls into classrooms and an addition to the library resulted in the relocation of study hall to the freshly painted auditorium with new desks. Supervisors, Mrs. Roys, and Mr. Obrastoff worked with study checkers to achieve study hall's purpose: that of businesslike study and quiet. Contending with a majority of football players working as supervisors and a cowbell to call for quiet, students received tickets for tardiness, talking, and eating. Study checkers took attendance, mailed study excuses, and performed other secretarial services.

This year was one of innovation and change for many ASR committees. Sportsboosters continued to support the Roosevelt athletic teams through Pep Week, activities of committee members at games, and frequent donations of soft drinks and other refreshments to the players. In addition, they organized two all-school assemblies. The Elections Committee, initiated last year, coordinated every election held at Roosevelt. Comprised of silkscreen, poster, and student bulletin committees, the Communications Committee was aided in its program to keep students informed by the acquisition of four new silkscreen frames. The PTA Dance Committee members, in addition to their advisory work on all dances, organized two themselves. A new addition to Roosevelt this year was the Special Events Committee, which directed such varied programs as Traditions Week and Homecoming, as well as aiding other committees in various dances, drives, and presentations. The Communications, Dance, and Special Events Committees all worked on the ASR Happening, a new and unique aspect of Roosevelt life.

Various service and language clubs enabled students to become more involved within their school and subjects. Club Council promoted programs and activities to include a maximum of students. An Open House was held in the fall to introduce students to RHS clubs. While working with handicapped children, the Spades developed leadership qualities and encouraged understanding and interest of these children. RHS students were offered the opportunity to participate in a number of clubs corresponding to their individual interests. The Camera Club sponsored fund-raising print sales in December and May, after the Senior Play and Drama Festival. They also collaborated with the Senior Class to take Santa pictures in December. Musical entertainment at assemblies was provided by the year-old Organ Club. An Inter-School Tournament matched the chess skills of Roosevelt students against those of other Seattle schools. Ski Club activities included a ski dance in November, all-city races, movies, and speakers for interested members. Students in the Natural History Society broadened their knowledge by visiting various sites of interest on field trips, and by observing animals at different zoos and museums. Members of the Radio Club became more experienced with the uses of radios, and combined with the Chess Club to set up a chess game between San Francisco and Seattle.

Giving recognition to students with a 3.5 or better G.P.A. in four subjects, or service points to make up the difference, Torch had a theme this year of "Torch Lives." With a poetry editorial, "Procul Harum," and discussion groups, Torch showed a change from recurrent activities. The traditional Torch Banquet in November revolved around the idea that "The Queen Has A Past," with a speaker on the history of Seattle.

A new adviser, Mr. Whitney, and original programs demonstrated the new outlook and involvement of Boys' Club. Beginning a year of imagination and progress with green and gold balloons and a car smash for the jamboree, Boys' Club also sponsored a Father-Son Dessert, Football Skills contest, and an Ugly Man contest to raise money for injured athletes.

Personal involvement is possible within changed surroundings.

Measuring up to the theme "Anything Can Happen," the 1967-68 Girls' Club staged a year of "firsts" in activities for Roosevelt. Beginning with the creation of a new office, the Committee Co-Ordinator, Girls' Club had a change of advisers at the semester. The carameled apple sale before Halloween, with the theme "The Big Apple is Coming Back Carameled" was a fresh idea that made $30 profit. A Dating Game Assembly and a Boutique where items made by RHS girls were sold were activities sponsored for the first time by Girls' Club. Planned around the idea "St. Valentine's Massacre Resolved," the GC Tolo in February was the first PTA tolo held for six years and the first dance in the new lunchroom. Besides these new beginnings, the traditional Father-Daughter Banquet, Hollyberry week with the theme "All Is Bright," a Jay Jacobs' Fashion Show, and a Mother-Daughter Tea were held.

Students assist in the change.

Combining leadership and service, the Ruffs and Spurs represented Roosevelt's outstanding seniors. Holding their first meeting in the auditorium, the Spurs donated time to day care centers and invalid homes in Seattle. With a change of advisers for both groups, Spurs held a talent show and had panels on the pros and cons of Spur membership, while service given by the Ruffs involved the Anti-Tuberculosis Center, the Handicapped Center, and ushering at RHS functions.

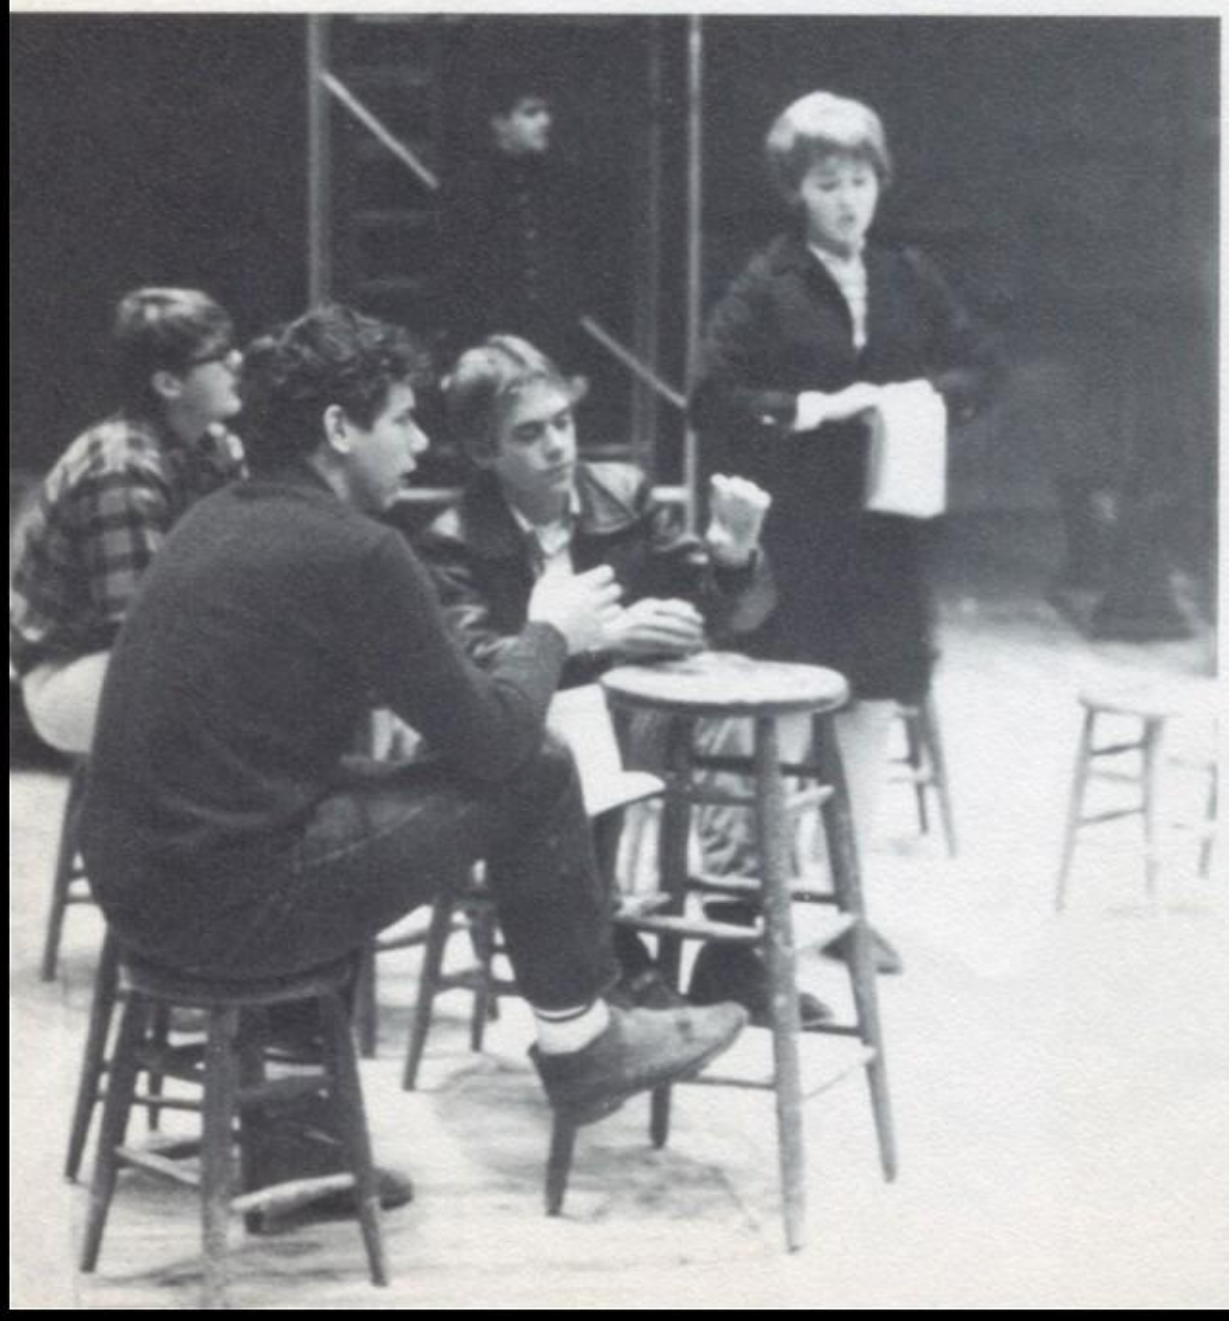
PRODUCTIONS

Productions augment school life.

Surrounded by interested viewers, Dick Bozarth and Don Wright perfect their roles as two evil capitalists.

Advanced drama students combine their separate efforts.

Loren Isaac and Peter Bonow, acting as two prospectors, drink and converse together in a practice of the café scene.



Two actors practice a lovers' quarrel for the play's opening.

To save time, Fred Woodhouse, the Stage Manager, uses his weight to bring up the fire curtain.

Miss Wills, director, and student directors, Carla Van Dam and Chris Wienker, work together to improve a scene.

The work of both the directors and Stage Crew was invaluable in preparing the Senior Play, presented on December 1st and 2nd. The directors organized the play and helped the actors to develop their roles, while the Stage Crew did the technical work on the production.

The Stage Crew's work also included the creation of one backdrop, a cellar scene, for the play. The other backdrop showed a street of Paris; it was rented from a Hollywood studio because classes held backstage provided the crew little time to paint. However, it was aided in its attempt to give the stage an attractive appearance by the replacement of the old acting curtain and the addition of a new black background curtain given by the PTA.

Miss Wills reviews the script.

"How beautiful he is!"

"Men are big and beautiful, and as loyal as dogs."

"If it's not oil, by the time we get through, it will be."

Careful attention to detail results in a polished performance.

The Roosevelt Drama Department, under the direction of Miss Norma Wills, presented the Senior Play, The Madwoman of Chaillot, in two performances on December 1st and 2nd. The plot was centered around the struggle between individualism and objective materialism, between good and evil. The nonconformists of Chaillot, a district of Paris, were slowly being suffocated by the impersonal businessmen of the area. Countess Aurelia, the Madwoman of Chaillot and an eccentric lover of life, lured these men through a trap door in her basement with promises of oil below, thus sending them into the sewers of the city forever and overcoming evil and greed. The talents of many Roosevelt students were revealed in this demanding production.

"I swear to lie, conceal and distort everything, and slander everyone."

"I say that it's too late for them."

"Festival in My Mind" was the theme of the 1968 Drama Festival. The company managers and Miss Wills, adviser, organized the festival tryouts and supervised the development of each play. No limitations were placed on those trying out for Drama Festival. Eight directors from the advanced drama class chose their casts and presented one-act plays to the school in April. Individual performances were judged and the three best plays were chosen to be given to the public. These plays were judged and all awards were given on the night of the final performances.

An old English fable, "Ralph Roister Doister," tells of a buffoon's humorous attempts to win love.

Due to the shortage of available classrooms, Roosevelt's choral groups, under the direction of Miss Mary Tembreull, were required to hold classes in the Boys' Gym Foyer. The choir overcame this handicap, however, and enacted many alterations in their organization. Last year's Trouvères were modified to become this year's Swing Choir. The Classicantors, formerly called the Madrigals, increased their repertoire to include classical music of all periods. The Boys' Choir, the only one of its kind in the senior highs of Seattle, was initiated at the beginning of the first semester. These groups, in addition to Concert Chorale, Girls' Choir, and Nonettes, were in great demand to entertain at many important social functions throughout the Seattle area.

Roosevelt students were given the opportunity to express their varying musical talents in the Concert Orchestra and Folkfest. Both groups selected a wide range of music. The Orchestra played in school programs, such as the Hollyberry Concert and Spring Concert, and presented a series of E-period concerts for interested students. Proficient musicians participated in the Music Educators' National Conference which was sponsored in March by the Seattle Public Schools.

The Junior and Senior classes produced the Folkfest of 1968. It was held on February 3 and presented fifteen acts. Music ranged from the traditional folky guitar to country blues, and included some compositions written by the students.

Due to redistribution of the ASR budget, appropriations for Roosevelt's French poetic magazine were not sufficient to cover costs of publication. Under the direction of Mrs. Sarah Vyborny, adviser, French students sold fudge at Senior Play performances to raise funds for La Douce Vie. Despite conflicting schedules and lack of space, Lab Writer Board met weekly to analyze submissions while members chewed on crushed ice and cookies. The Roosevelt News was the work of the editors and reporters, as well as the journalism classes and the Ad Staff. Each reporter covered a "beat," a specific area of the school. When he found an interesting idea for a story, he would report back to the editors, who would have it written up for the paper by a member of News Staff. The Ad Staff got the advertisements for the paper, which supplied a large part of the funds necessary for its printing.

During the second semester, the position of managing editor was introduced to assist the editor-in-chief in the organization of the front page. The change gave him more time to work on the paper as a whole.

Besides this, another change was made. Offset printing was used for the paper instead of letter press. With the new system more pictures were possible and each picture was clearer.

The 1968 Strenuous Life staff found it unusually important to hold on to its past traditions and policies as the school fought problems of extensive expansion and construction. What had once been accepted advantages and conditions no longer existed. The staff had to meet a deadline each month without a private room and sufficient interest, as the upheaval of construction was felt by every individual, classroom, and organization in Roosevelt. The 1968 Strenuous Life staff aimed not only at overcoming the physical handicaps of the year, but also at capturing the emotions and the changes the year represented. The staff worked together to create something tangible for Roosevelt and the year 1968.

SPORTS

Athletic competition is inherent to the identity of the school.

Athletes meet in new surroundings.

The Roosevelt Roughriders completed the 1967 football season with a record of three wins and five losses. Although suffering four straight defeats to Garfield, Ingraham, Shoreline, and Hale, the team proved that the desire to win was still strong in a 19-0 victory over Shorecrest in the last game. Six returning lettermen and two sophomores, along with eighteen juniors and seniors, made up the varsity team.

The Roughriders were first among the world's high schools when they walked out onto the newly installed Astro-turf at Memorial Stadium to train for the pre-season Jamboree. According to Coach Harney, the turf was one of the greatest things to happen to Metro League Football in years. It made fast players faster and improved the over-all quality of the games by making them more colorful and allowing the players' numbers to be more easily seen. The turf also made possible the introduction of double-header games so that more teams could play on it. It is hoped that in the future the whole Metro League schedule can be played on the Astro-turf.

The Junior Varsity football squad ranked third in the Northern Division. They finished the season with a 3-2-1 win-loss-tie record. The team fought to a 6-6 tie with Shorecrest. Their only losses were to Ballard and Shoreline. All three victories, over Hale, Ingraham, and Lincoln, were shut-outs—14-0, 7-0, and 27-0.

The Sophomore team faced many problems which contributed to their 0-7 win-loss record. Five of the team's most promising players were lost, two to the varsity squad, and three due to various qualifying factors. Additional losses due to injuries required players to cover positions in which they had had little or no experience. The inexperience of most of the larger players was an added disadvantage.

Two new coaching techniques used were Marine-type exercises and the Stacked-I, which placed three backs behind the quarterback, allowing for easier shifting of the backfield.

Punting accuracy is exercised on the practice field.

In the final standings, the Varsity Cross Country team was third in the Northern Division. In the All-Metro meet, they ranked ninth. All four of the returning lettermen were out most of the season because of bad feet and bruised bones, but despite the fact that the team didn't win any of their four dual meets, spirit remained high. Home meets against Ingraham and Shoreline were run at Lower Woodland and Green Lake. Next year, all home meets will take place on the new course at Ravenna Park. The team also ran visiting meets at Shorecrest and Hale.

Although the Roosevelt Varsity Basketball team showed great promise at the beginning of the season, they were hampered by many injuries and played in hot and cold spurts. The back to back victories over Queen Anne and Shorecrest were their best games according to Coach Snowden. They finished the season with 9 wins and 10 losses.

With little chance to practice together, the Junior Varsity Team, composed of the non-starting juniors on the Varsity Team, was able to give each of their opponents a fight, never losing by a large score and finishing with a 3-9 win-loss record.

The Sophomore Basketball team closed the season with a standing of five wins and ten losses and acquired valuable experience through involvement in competitive situations. Coach Larry Whitney commented that while the boys had good potential, they lacked the determination and concern which is essential for a winning team. Yet, it was noted that general improvement proceeded at a faster rate as the season ended, which included the development of Varsity hopefuls.

With other teams thinking that they did not have a chance, the Roosevelt Swim Team was first again in the All City Swim Meet with a score of 223 total points, 40 more than Nathan Hale, their closest rivals. They performed much better than expected, setting two new city records on the way to another championship. According to Coach Walker of all the teams at the meet this team was the most inspired to win.

Due to disqualifications and injuries, the Roosevelt Ski Team did not have sufficient finishers to place in the overall competition at the Greater Seattle Ski Meet. Members of the boys' team did get first and seventh in the slalom event, and fifth in jumping, resulting in placing sixth out of twelve schools overall. The girls' team got first place in cross country, but did not place in overall competition.

The '68 trackmen at Roosevelt composed a young team. With seven returning seniors, fifteen juniors, and the occasional assistance of eight sophomores, the Teds had a lack of experience to overcome. In the first confrontation of the year with West Seattle, Roosevelt lost by a margin of six points, 56-50. Defeat was again felt when Shoreline led the meet against the Roughs, 83-42. Yet by mid-season, the all-city Relay Carnival proved that the Roosevelt team, coached by Lloyd Crowston, had something to offer. Dick Lewis came in first in the one mile, while the combined effort of our pole vaulters set a city record of 39'5".

The Roosevelt baseball team led off the season with a 1-0 victory over Ingraham and continued through their schedule of games with wins over Shorecrest, 4-3; Shoreline, 3-0. Rainier Beach, 5-1; Ballard, 6-2; Nathan Hale, 4-3; and Lincoln, 4-2. With eleven returning lettermen and five juniors, the Teds went on to first place in the Northern Division.

According to Coach Art Wiper the new pitching machine, which was partly responsible for the team's success, afforded each team member more time at batting practice.

In the final game of the season, Roosevelt defeated West Seattle 3-0, making all three runs in the ninth inning. Not a single West Seattle batter got on base, giving the team a no-hit game and the All-Metro Baseball Championship.

In addition to its regular schedule, the Varsity tennis team won practice matches against Queen Anne, Garfield, Franklin, and Seattle Prep. In regular matches, they defeated Shoreline (6-3), Hale (8-1), Shorecrest (9-0), Ingraham (7-2), Ballard (9-0), and Lincoln (7-2). This put the team in first place in the Northern Division.

The season ended with a victory over Franklin (6-3) after a close, six-hour match. This gave Roosevelt an undefeated season and the All-Metro Tennis Championship.

The Roosevelt golf team, in the first two of its three four-school matches, came in second behind Ingraham both times. In the second match, Roosevelt was only two points behind Ingraham.

The team practiced on Wednesdays and Fridays and had matches on Mondays and Thursdays. There were only four returning lettermen this year, but there will be six for next season. The team members had no chance to eat during the practice periods and often didn't arrive home until 8:00 or 8:30 at night.

Enthusiastic support contributes to the athlete's success.

The tradition of supporting our teams at athletic competitions was sustained and added to by the 1968 Song and Yell leaders. Taking part in a leadership conference at Ellensburg, along with strenuous practice during the summer, the cheerleaders returned to school ready to promote spirit among the student body. A pep book of songs and yells was produced by the group for the purpose of aiding the sophomores at games. They also took part in all-city Sports Days, held at Queen Anne, to kick off the football and basketball seasons.

Roosevelt's sports clubs provided opportunities for athletic minded students. Lettermen's Club, self-disciplined by an athletic council, brought together boys with Varsity Letters. Rho Club maintained a girls' after-school sports program including volleyball competition, gymnastics, badminton, and bowling. In the spring, Rho enabled girls to participate in city wide track and field competition. Boys took part in the after-school Intramural program. Limited facilities, due to remodeling, inhibited fall activities, but roll room basketball competition, soft-ball, and weight-lifting were later included to complete a year of sports for boys.

INSTRUCTION

The building and curriculum benefit from progress

The administration applies its knowledge to the new situation.

Richard J. West, principal, surrounded by the "library," September 1967.

The 1967-1968 school year has seen greater changes in the physical plant at Roosevelt than any other in its forty-five year history. Both students and faculty have experienced countless inconveniences and frustrations trying to maintain meaningful instruction in the midst of demolition and reconstruction. However, through the cooperation, determination, and resourcefulness of students, faculty, and parents, this year has become one of the most educationally productive in our history.

Our sparkling new facilities will make possible an even stronger instructional program in the future. Their flexibility will encourage further innovations as we experiment with more efficient instructional methods.

Unfinished building improvements made it necessary for history teachers to rely on the lunchroom for lectures and class work. Students, although required to take the regular courses, were also offered several outside activities. Some students had the opportunity to visit projects set up by the Central Area Motivation Program. Two model United Nations were also held during the year.

In the mathematics department, team-teaching and self-teaching were utilized. The computer that many students had learned to use was no longer at Roosevelt. Its loss, however, was made up for by the new resource center which made available new texts.

Mr. Pinkerton finds new material to add to his history information files.

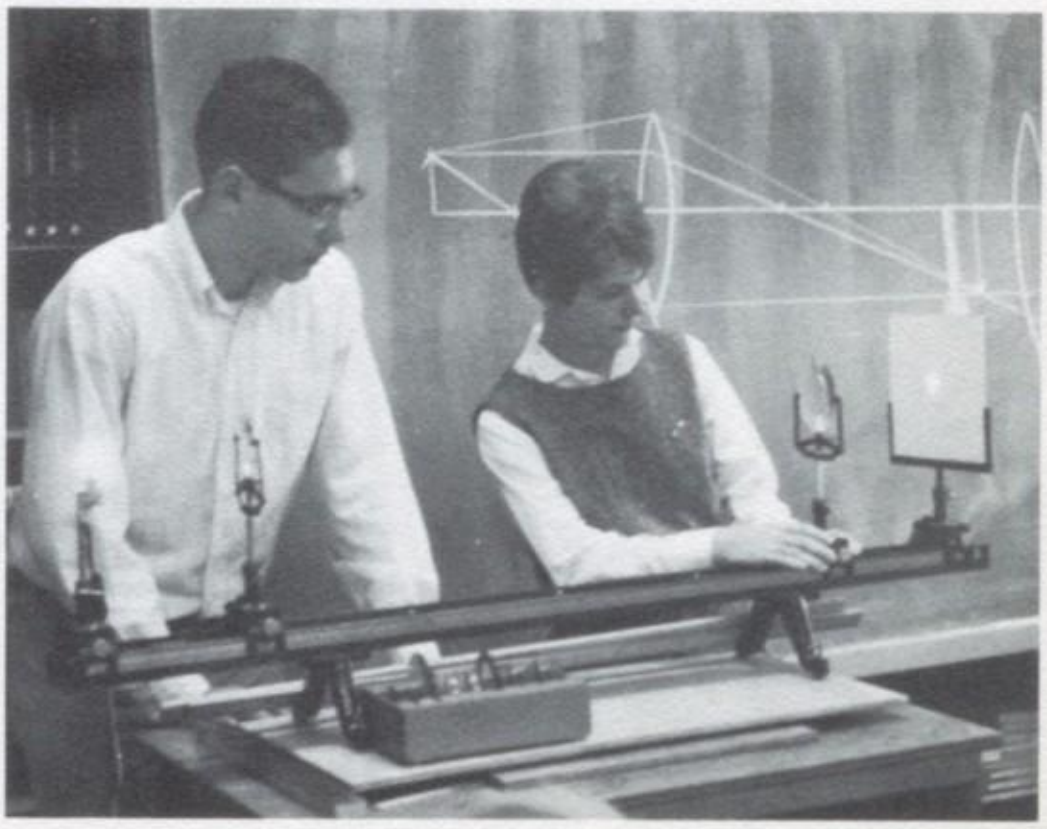
The Science Department faced the problem of being scattered throughout the school, while the complex was being completely reconstructed. Biology classes continued the team teaching program. Each class met as a large group for lectures and movies, separating into small groups for experiments. The teachers rotated according to their teaching days. Chemistry I and II also turned to team teaching. For advanced students, Chemistry III was offered. The experimental course was hampered by the lack of laboratories at the beginning of the year. Because of overcrowding, Physics classes were separated into small groups. Some of these classes met with the teacher while the remainder had Physics study. These students then met with the teacher another period, while the first group studied independently.



John Rodenberg and Betty Anderson set up a Physics experiment for a class demonstration.

Although hampered by the absence of library and research centers during the first semester, the Language Arts Department continued to function, using the Team Teaching approach and the conventional method. Sophomores gained knowledge of English literature, while Juniors concentrated on American authors and Seniors studied world literature. As an alternative, Juniors took Journalism, and learned the processes involved in making a newspaper. Another elective, Lab Writing, offered a study of world philosophy, while Senior Reading pursued literature.

Drama, an elective, offered a progression of classes, beginning with Speech Arts, where greater proficiency in speaking was strived for. Drama I-II provided basic training in acting, which was employed in Drama III, where students gave in-class productions. The advanced class, Drama V-VI, presented the Senior Play and Drama Festival.

Construction made it necessary for all of the foreign language classes to be moved to the first floor. Independent and small group work was stressed by the Foreign Language Department. The resource center made available texts, tape recorders, and other outside materials. Students were permitted to practice speaking and to play special tapes. With the larger language classes this year, films and film strips were also utilized by the teachers.

The Music Department made gains with the addition of a new music room and two vocal groups, the Classicantors and the Trouvères. Mr. Taylor stressed the "new look" which included the new music and choir rooms, practice uniforms, storage rooms, and stereo equipment.

The Art Department was enriched with the addition of two dark rooms for photography. A new photography course was also offered which stressed the technical and scientific aspects of photography as well as the art form.

Innovation takes place in physical education.

Although construction created problems for some classes, it also brought compensations. The Junior and Sophomore girls' gym classes met in the balcony of the auditorium and studied for the first few weeks of school until the gyms were emptied of library books. Classes were resumed in October, on a limited basis, prior to the completion of the dressing rooms and showers in the second semester. However, both the Sophomore and Junior gyms received a new room for dancing and tumbling.

A new addition to the boys' gym program was the "Marcy Circuit Trainer," a machine used for exercises and weight lifting. The machine was utilized both by classes and by the athletic teams.

Health Education, a required, one semester subject for Seniors, was taught in the new annex. The co-ed classes received instruction on mental health, drugs, and anatomy, in addition to other related subjects. Films and speakers supplemented the course.

The Industrial Arts Department, located in the new annex, boasted a new class, the Electronics Laboratory. With new equipment for each individual, the class offered unique experiences in all areas of this field. As well as the basic courses of Typing, Bookkeeping, and Accounting, the Business Education Department offered classes for both the college-bound student and those planning to seek employment immediately upon high school graduation. Business English and Business Law, recommended by the University of Washington, were new classes offered by the department. The Business Machines course expanded to all seven periods instead of the four offered last year. The Home Economics Department, situated in new rooms, offered classes in all areas of this field, with the purpose of helping the students develop more proficient methods of home economy.

Building construction brought problems and eventual advantages to those staff members responsible for the upkeep of Roosevelt. Though the lunchroom was finished for the beginning of school, the kitchen was not, and for several weeks, the lunchroom staff served "Herfy Burgers" and milkshakes. New facilities included a lunch line, snack bar, and milkshake counter; breakfast was also available. The kitchen staff had the additional duty of preparing lunch for University Heights Elementary School.

Custodians, working day and night, coped with the dirt and confusion of a school under construction. They also undertook the customary supervision of lockers, a duty somewhat changed by the recent installment of lockers in all halls throughout the school.

The secretarial staff was responsible for bulletins, absentee lists, attendance records, and the issuing of report cards. Although each of the eight secretaries performed separate tasks, all aimed at keeping Roosevelt functioning properly.

It all seemed to happen so quickly. Junior high was over and the Class of 1970 entered Roosevelt. New faces as well as a new school urged the Sophomores to be active. Their theme, "Even the Bad Times Are Good," set the mood for what became a year of tedious construction, never ending class competitions, and organizations to join. The Class of '70 won the Senior Class Pencil Sale, and, combined with the Juniors, the ASR Magazine Sale. It was the year of adjustments for the whole school, but with the security of still having two more years ahead, the Sophomores concentrated on becoming a part of Roosevelt High School.

The Sophomore enters a new school.

Over the "brand new" stage, Juniors expected to know almost everything about the school that had seemed so new the year before. They found this difficult in a building that had changed so much during the few summer months. But with the aid of drives and other, more traditional activities, the Juniors were able to accomplish as much as previous classes. The sale of "69" buttons proved successful due to the hard work of the Junior Class Drives Committee. Juniors also worked with Seniors on the annual Junior-Senior Dance. Illustrating concerns beyond the boundaries of Roosevelt, they sent gifts to servicemen in Viet Nam. As they were elected to school offices, Juniors realized the responsibilities and promises of their Senior year, and awaited it anxiously.

The Junior undergoes a period of transition.

The 1968 Senior Class experimented with the new and different in an attempt to create a meaningfully active Senior year. Their motto, "the accustomed is not the inevitable," indicated newly attempted activities. Among these were the monthly Senior Newsletter, Seniority Speaks, and the Senior Movie, which depicted life at Roosevelt. Seniors also retained established activities, such as the Junior-Senior Dance, Senior Cruise, Senior Luncheon, Senior Prom, Senior Gift, and, finally, Commencement. Open Senior roll assemblies, held throughout the year, enabled Seniors to take advantage of several student speakers. At the first assembly, Lori Larsen read "A Child's Christmas in Wales," by Dylan Thomas. Bruce McKagan, Senior Class Vice President, spoke in support, defense, and praise of Roosevelt's Roughriders. In a time of difficult transitions, the Senior Class rose above trifling inconveniences and operated as an active whole.

Seniors congregate for another open roll assembly.

Caught between exhuberance and a sense of responsibility, the Senior faces his last year at Roosevelt.

Don Wills, chairman of the Senior Movie Committee, films Seniors selling pencils.

Mindy Roberts mimeographs a copy of the Senior Newsletter as other seniors review a past copy.

A year is completed, yet the choice and the uncertainty of the next still remains.

We can face our lives, bear them, or change them.

The Strenuous Life Staff extends acknowledgements
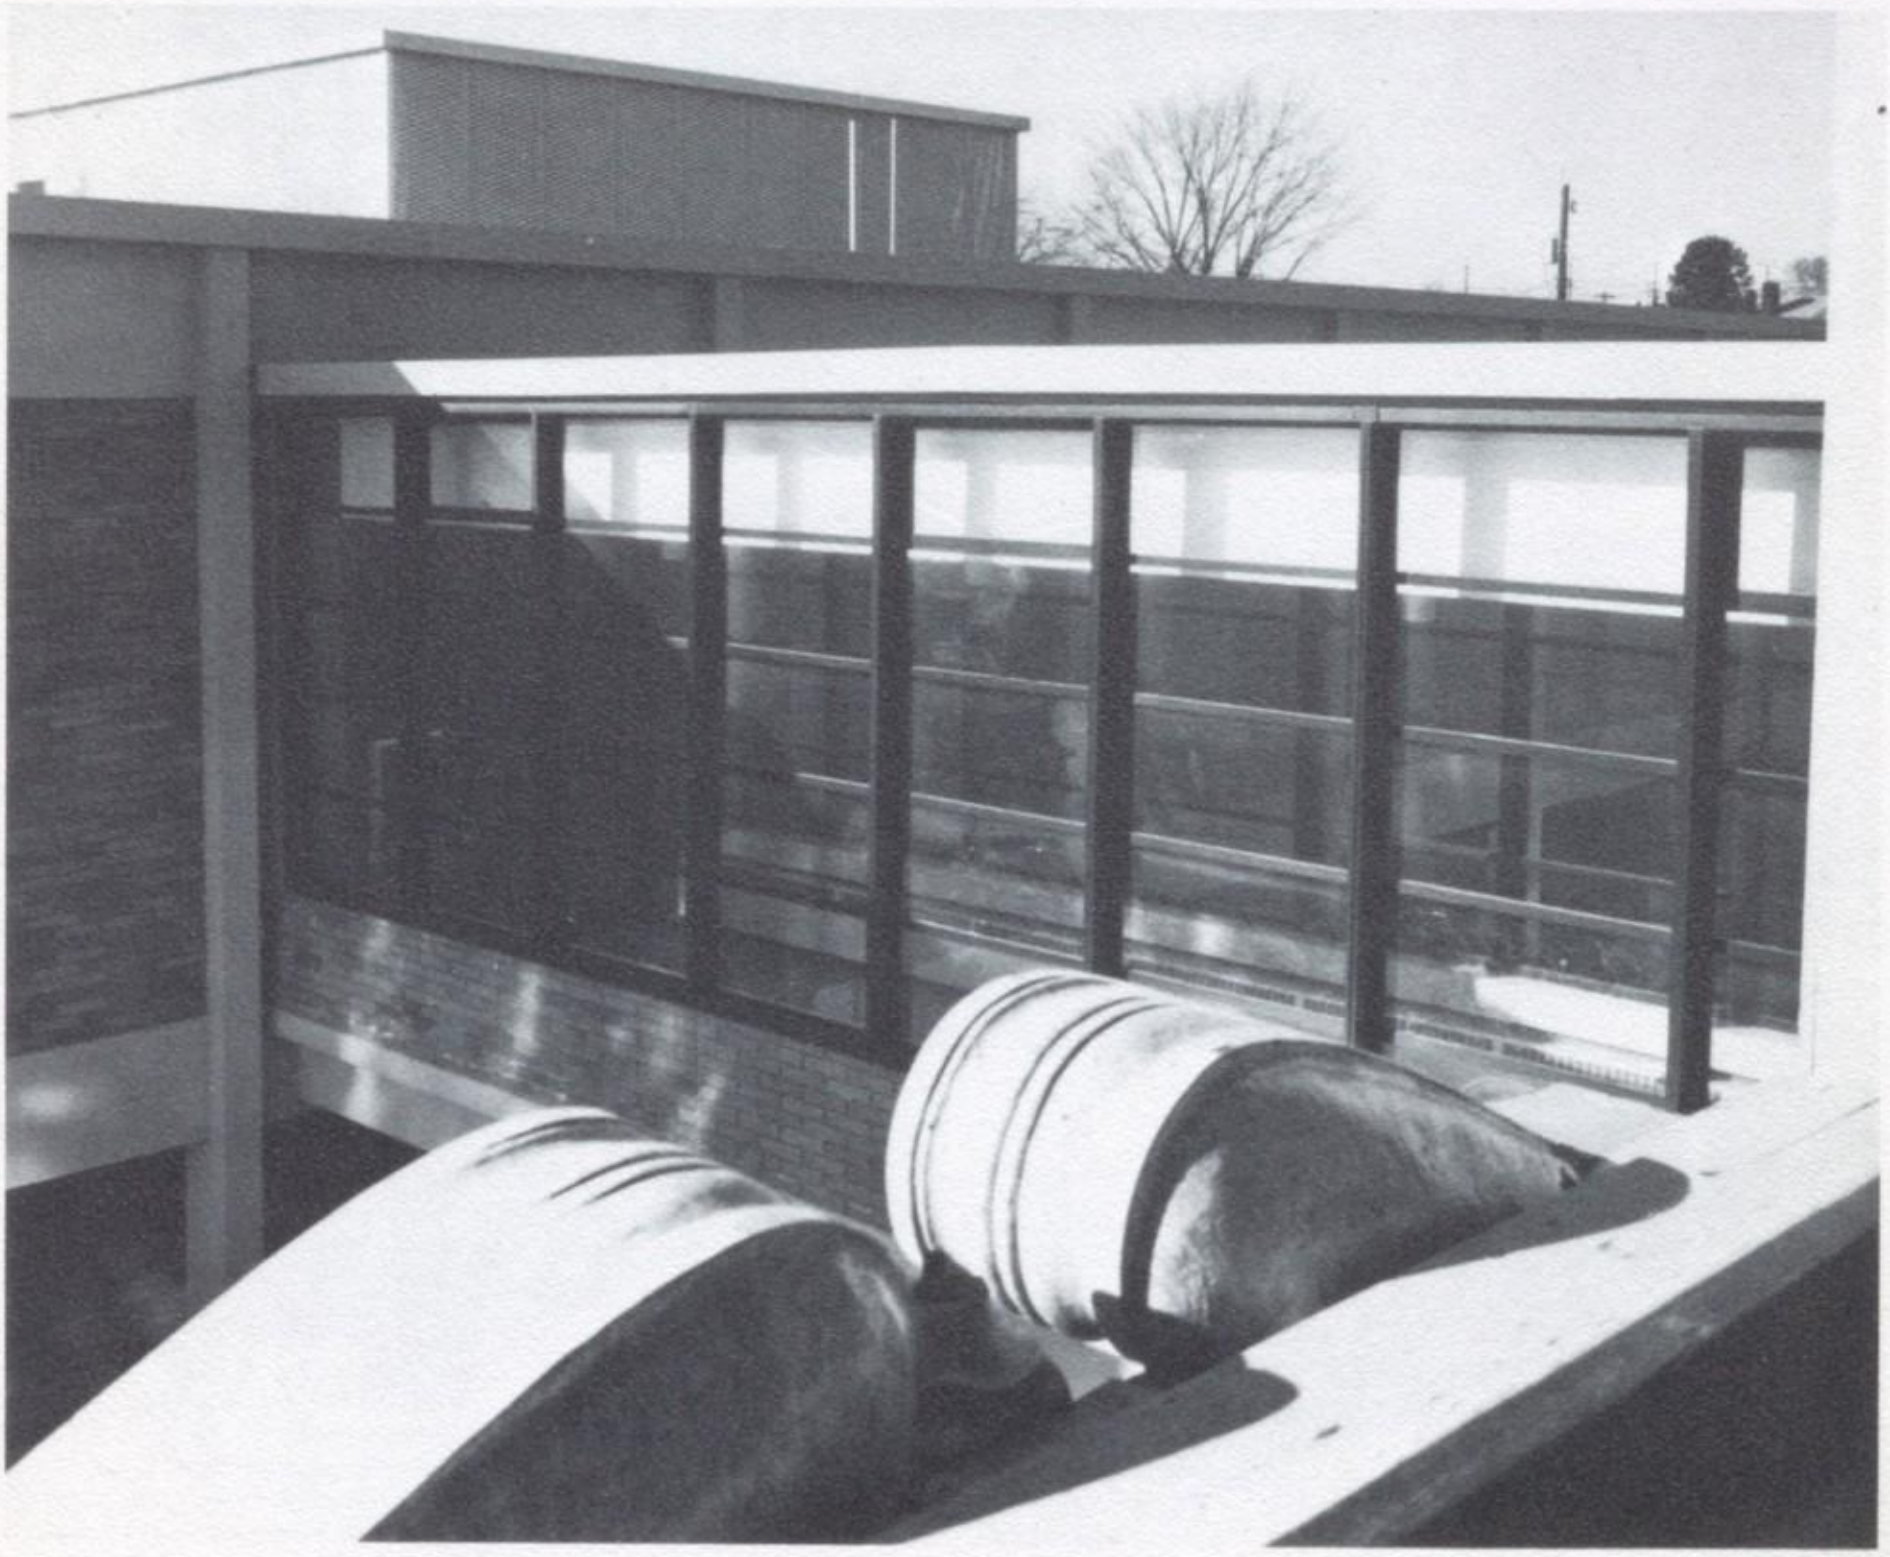
To Mrs. Wilma Reinecke for her tolerance, understanding, and guidance.
To the L & H Printing Company, and especially Mr. William Ackley and Mrs. Marian Alloway.
To Rowland Studio, and especially Mr. Rowland Johnson.
To the S. K. Smith Company, and especially Mr. Jim Palm.
To Lynn Lomax for her cooperation and assistance.
To Camera Club for their photographs.
To Scott Gilbert for his photographs and time.
To the administration, faculty, and students of Roosevelt High School.



LITHOGRAPHED IN THE U.S.A.
BY L & H PRINTING CO., SEATTLE

Mrs. Smith,

I've learned so much this year - I sure have noticed how much I have changed just this year. I have also learned to know myself better & a lot of the credit goes to you.

Love,

Janet Holman

Dear Mrs. Smith,
Oh, I thank you
so, so very much for everything you've given me. You are such a sincere person - I admire you so much.
I will miss you next year, but never forget you. Teaching is so right for you!
Love, Jan Peterson

Mrs Smith,

It's really hard for me to express in words what I feel about the class and about you. I do know that I've learned more in this class than all my other classes put together.

— Most of what I've learned has been about myself! I'll always remember your advice to get my own consent! Many of the units were trying but worth it!

Thank you so much for all you've taught me about literature and about myself.

I hope your summer is restful so that you can handle another Sophomore class next year!

— All the happiness in the world,

Karen Hogness

Mrs. Smith

I still remember the first time when I entered your class and we knew each other all the ahead of me. To me all the possible, it is hard to think that it seemed like it did then. Smith, it is hard to think that I have spent 12 years of my life going to school - sometimes I really wonder if it was worth it. When I look back, it was worth it because I had some teachers. No longer can I drag out my thankyous ~~I~~ as special and I always remember this class. And I keep because you need you.

Love,

Mrs. Smith,

This year has been tremendous, and extremely hectic (to a point of near insanity (that's how it seemed)). Nevertheless you have helped me grow - I have learned much, mostly about myself. Enjoy your summer ~~refresh~~ vacation.

Rick

Mrs. Smith,
It's so hard to write down or thank you for all the help you've given me this - inspiration and Mr. Ingersoll! You've been the greatest advisor and friend and Spurs has been the better for your help at least this Spur officer has. I'm so glad I've gotten to know you as a person, which is so hard for students to know teachers like I know you. I've never forgot the ride on your sailboat and the dinner at your house. I have so many fond memories of 3rd period Student Government. All I can say is Thank YOU so much.

Love,
Cindy

Mrs. Smith -
I just don't think I could tell you how much a whole year of Spurs has meant to me. It just really made the year one especially great to remember. I enjoyed all of your quotations and wrote some down too! Thank you for a wonderful year - Roberta Stevenson
